

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A docking station is provided with apertures that line up with apertures in a notebook. When the notebook is docked on the docking station, air is forced out of the notebook through the openings of the docking station and the notebook.